CITYGATE™
NETWORK

YOU'RE GUIDING THEIR FEET. WE'RE WATCHING YOUR BACK.

For one reason or another, a million or more people in North America have lost their grip on the bonds of a balanced community. Some are clinging to the fraying cords of society's safety net; many others have fallen through one of its gaping holes and find themselves face down in a life of destitution and desperation.

Hungry, homeless, abused, and addicted, these people are in dire need of life transformation. And because you believe the Bible teaches that they are precious in God's sight, you work every day to pick them up and put their feet on the road that leads from human suffering to human flourishing.

But you know all too well that the individuals and families choosing to walk this straight line of progress need on-going guidance every step of the way. They need it when:

- ▷ Weighing whether to accept your offer for help or go back to the streets.
- ▷ Making decisions about their physical and mental health.
- ▷ Coming face-to-face with their spiritual condition.
- ▷ Deciding if they have the discipline to complete a treatment program.
- ▷ Figuring out if finishing their education is worth the work.
- ▷ Considering whether to rekindle old relationships.

Later on, strong guidance is of paramount importance when they are choosing a career, evaluating housing options, and finally, needing to connect with a stable community.

All along this difficult path, because you care about their success, you're guiding their feet.

And because your success is important to us, we're watching your back.

We are Citygate Network—an organization with well over a hundred years of experience in equipping, promoting, and protecting ministries like yours that are serving North America's most marginalized people.

Life Comes with a "Reset Button."

Citygate Network is openly and unapologetically a Christian organization. This means the board and administration—and those who join—believe by faith that Jesus of Nazareth was marvelously and simultaneously God and man—someone whose sinless life, death, burial, and resurrection are the basis for understanding and living life according to God's plan. This makes offering help and hope to people in destitute conditions and desperate situations an exciting endeavor, because it is essentially a way of proclaiming and achieving what God wants: that His Kingdom should begin to emerge, right here on earth, just as it already exists in heaven.

At Citygate Network, we also believe that real transformation in a person is possible because the Bible teaches that life comes with a "reset button." It says in 2 Corinthians 5 that "...we don't evaluate people by what they have or how they look [on the outside]...we look inside, and what we see is that anyone united with [Jesus] gets a fresh start, is created new. The old life is gone; a new life emerges! Look at it! All this comes from the God who settled the relationship between us and Him, and then called us to settle our relationships with each other" (MSG). Citygate Network's tagline underscores this prospect. It says, "Enter here. Start anew." And that's what hundreds of thousands of people who are guests and clients at our member organizations do every year.

Our heritage is rescue.

Citygate Network started out in 1906 as the National Federation of Gospel Missions, then became the International Union of Gospel Missions, then the Association of Gospel Rescue Missions. Although rescue is no longer in our name, almost all of our members “do rescue.” When they coax a needle or a bottle away from a defeated addict who is about to overdose or blackout, that’s a rescue. When they fling open the door for a frightened prostitute running away from her pimp...and lock it behind her, that’s a rescue. When they welcome a former gang member just released from prison and provide a base for him to launch a new life and escape reincarceration, that’s a rescue. When they provide good nutrition for a young child whose brain and body development is languishing because his or her family is regularly experiencing “food insecurity,” that’s a rescue. All of this and more happens hundreds of times every day in our member organizations.

“Partnership with Citygate Network has been invaluable in moving our mission forward. The resources, educational opportunities, and community they offer has taken us to the next level of service and care”

Moving people from human suffering to human flourishing.

Around the world, there are basically four ways that Christians and Christian organizations try to move people from human suffering to human flourishing. The first is humanitarian aid. This is where food and emergency supplies are shipped to places where there is famine, or medicine and medical teams are sent to places where there is an outbreak. It's digging wells where there is drought to provide life-giving clean water.

The second way is disaster relief. This is about rushing to places where there has been a catastrophe and rescuing people from their rooftops or storm cellars and taking them to gymnasiums or community centers where food, shelter, temporary aid, and counsel are offered. And it includes helping people eventually repair or rebuild their houses and places of business.

The third way is community development. This is where young families move into depressed neighborhoods and commit to long-term residency. They love on people and work with church leaders, civic-group leaders, politicians, and concerned citizens to construct better housing, improve education, ensure safe recreation, bring in jobs, and increase economic development.

The fourth way people are moved from human suffering to human flourishing is life transformation. This is what missions and kindred ministries do—helping poor and powerless individuals and families, through the power of the gospel, progress from destitution and bondage to the point where they are self-sufficient and giving back to their communities.

Life Transformation starts and ends with an "S."

At Citygate Network, we believe the life-transformation process is about seeing people advance through various stages where they are saved (making choices that will keep them from chronic illness and physical death); sober (no longer controlled by stimulants or depressants); stable (mentally and emotionally balanced and enjoying good health); schooled (enriched with the fundamental knowledge to be competent and competitive); skilled (being academically credentialed and set on a career path); secure (able to provide financially for themselves and their loved ones); settled (benefitting from having the same safe place of their own to stay every night); and serving (giving back to the community through missional living).

Note: Spiritual regeneration can (and does) happen in any of the eight stages.

The City Gate Presents a Powerful Visual.

The concept for the name of our organization comes from Bible times when cities were walled for protection purposes and various gates were built at points around the wall. But for extra protection, there were often second interior gates. The walled area between the two gates became a large courtyard. The entire courtyard area was known simply as the city gate. Everybody and everything coming in or going out of a city passed through these courtyards, basically making them the vestibules for the city.

But for the stranger, the person in distress, the person in need, it was a place of safety: You could stop running when you entered the city gate. It was a place to have immediate needs met: Water for a parched throat, bread for an empty stomach, bandages for an injured foot. It was a place to have disputes settled: Court was held there. It was a place to seek counsel: Wise city leaders gathered there to give advice and direction...spiritual and otherwise. For all intents and purposes, if you needed a reprieve, needed to assess your situation, needed guidance, needed to prepare for your ongoing journey, you could do it in the city gate.

You might ask, "Doesn't the Church or the government function in the role of the city gate?" Well, sometimes they do, but all too often they lack the resources and expertise (as is the case with many local churches) or the spiritual perspective (as is the case with government) to do what really needs to be done.

That leaves it to missions and kindred ministries to step forward, join together, and be the new city gate—a network from coast to coast and beyond, doing the work of liberation and life transformation with desperate and destitute people—and doing so with an unwavering focus on the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ to set people free and change their lives.

10 REASONS WHY YOUR ORGANIZATION NEEDS TO BE A CITYGATE NETWORK MEMBER

1 You become part of a huge network of colleagues. When you join, you instantly get connected to a whole host of friends who are passionate about the same things that move you, and deal with what you do every day. They become an invaluable source of advice and inspiration. Through our Connect Groups, your staff and volunteers can easily bond with their peers across the continent.

2 You gain access to mission-specific training and resources. Citygate Network is the most complete source for poverty ministry-related educational seminars and materials. Our core curriculum covers all the bases in programming and operations, and technology allows for great learning opportunities in both physical and virtual classrooms.

3 You are never out of the loop on the latest news and trends. The news never stops, and Citygate Network keeps you up to date with what you need to know to make the right decisions. Our publications and website give you inside news and tell you what's happening in the halls of government as well as on the streets of North America that is related to what you do.

4 You have a national voice on important issues. When Citygate Network speaks to the media or addresses the Church at-large, you, as a member, are represented. You can have your voice heard as a part of the whole, or you can participate in association programs that will put your mission at the podium with the microphone in your hand.

5 You have a safe “place” to go for advice and support. When you need a sympathetic ear but aren't comfortable going to mission staff or volunteers, and it's not appropriate to talk to those in your community, you can turn to Citygate Network. You'll find someone who understands what you're going through, will listen to you in confidence, and will pray with you.

6 You increase your exposure to the public. People near or far can easily find exactly where you are located and learn precisely what you do because your name and website will be listed on Citygate Network's high-visibility website. This is especially helpful when people need to place friends and family in the care of someone they can trust far from home. It also can help potential donors and volunteers find you.

7 You save time and money on things you need to buy. It's true that there is strength in numbers, and that is why Citygate Network can leverage deals in the business community to bring you significant savings (even if a lot of what you use is donated). And when we find deals, the details are listed and circulated in a number of members-only sources, so you won't miss them.

8 You keep your whole team moving forward together. Because Citygate Network automatically brings some or all of your key staff members into membership when your mission joins, the benefits are multiplied throughout your organization. They'll have access to all of the valuable resources, and it won't totally fall on your shoulders to look for different training opportunities or keep them up to speed on what's happening in the areas of social justice, creative programming, and ministry management.

9 You can share your expertise with more people. Because Citygate Network is a member-influenced organization, it relies heavily on the experience and skill of members for content and delivery. There are plenty of places for you to share what you know through the written or spoken word, and you can help influence policy by involvement in committees and special task forces.

10 You will receive ongoing spiritual encouragement. In Citygate Network, you will find many denominations and affiliations represented. Our focus, however, is not on our differences but on the passion and person of Jesus, and everyone who's part of Citygate Network is just as committed to the gospel as you are. Therefore, one of the big benefits you receive is a subtle but constant reminder of why we do what we do, and Whom we are serving.

The larger your organization, the higher your dues—but the more “classic” and “digital” member seats you receive, meaning you get more hard copies of publications, more discounts on events, more access to our vast online resource library, and so on. (We also offer all member organizations a specific number of “digital” member seats, but you can learn more about that later.)

Membership categories include: Mission/Ministry Member; Agency Member; Church Member; Associate Member; and Business Member, all of which are explained on the Citygate Network website.

All mission/ministry members are asked to sign a Statement of Faith and a Code of Ethics, which can be found on the membership application and renewal form. Additionally, all mission/ministry members will be referred to Citygate Network's Position Statements to verify that affiliation is a comfortable fit, theologically and philosophically.

Annual membership dues can be paid quarterly or in-full for a discount. First-time members can ask about our Membership Assistance Plan (limited availability) in which it's possible to get three years for the price of two.
